The Grapevine family restaurant started with the ambition of one man, Michael Trak, also known as "Chef Mike". Upon arriving in America from overseas in 1971 with no more than a five-dollar bill and a pocket full of family recipes, he began to cook, bake, and sauté his way through the restaurant business. Shortly after, in 1972, his wife Mary followed him. They continued to work tirelessly side by side for the years to come. While Chef Mike was working his magic in the kitchen, Mother Mary was in the dining room greeting and serving their guests. The Trak family not only treats their customers as if they are royalty, they reflect that same passion onto their employees as well.

They are the most humble and generous people you will ever meet. Above all else they put their love for God, friendship, country, and family first. Their years of experience as a family business not only reflect in the kitchen and the dining room but through the community as a whole. As the years have gone by, the Trak family has given over five hundred thousand dollars to local charities and organizations, solidifying their role as a prominent Richmond staple. Most recently, The Grapevine received awards for having the "Friendliest Servers in Richmond" and was also voted for "Best Restaurant North of the James"
